

Cows love grass and our fields are just full of different sorts of grass.

Amongst others:

Cocksfoot

Perennial rye-grass

Fescue

But if we look more closely we can also see lots of other plants.... so far we have counted more than 130 different sorts of plants ("species") in our fields. Here are just four of them:

Common stork's-bill (Erodium cicutarium)

Herb Bennet (Geum urbanum)

Bugle (Ajuga reptans)

Common mallow (Malva sylvestris)

Many of these plants are in all the fields and some only grow and flower at certain times of the year.

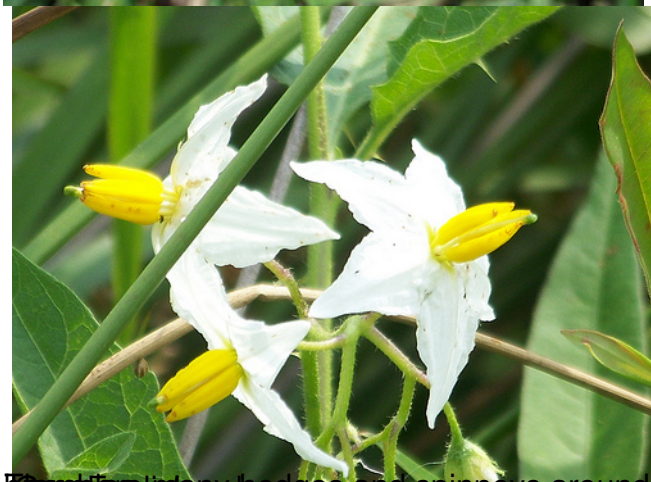

But there are some you can see at almost any time of the year, such as the daisy (Bellis

There are many poisonous plants in our fields, but cows tend to avoid them!

Black nightshade

There are many hedges and spinneys around our fields, with trees, shrubs, undergrowth and

Quercus ilex

Fraxinus angustifolia

Corylus avellana

Castanea sativa

Crataegus monogyna
